There you go, it's not just me. If content is made to a standard and one of the settings for a particular TV is intended by the manufacturer to be closest to that standard it seems very misleading to label it "Warm" when a label such as "Neutral", "Reference", "Accurate" and probably lots of other alternatives would convey more clearly to the user (or at least to this user) that a particular ...

I don't have an HH6, but if you give the bands different SSID's, does it subsequently offer you the option to set a different password on each..? (If you have the same SSID for both, then you would want to have the same p/w, hence it might not give you the choice.) A lot of client devices build a ...
